

ICONIS 2024

The 8th International Conference on Islamic Studies

CALL FOR PAPERS

THEME

“The Five Great ASIAN languages, Discourse, and The Development of Islamic Civilization”

DESCRIPTION

Civilization consists of 7 main aspects which are systematically interconnected. Those aspects are (1) Faith and Belief, (2) politics and government, (3) economics and resources distribution, (4) Science and technology, (5) family and society, (6) architecture and spatial planning, and (7) Language. Language, in essence, covers those seven aspects of civilization, because language functions as storing achievements of civilization as well as driving its development. Language plays a crucial role in constructing, innovating, and elevating civilization. ASIA is the cradle of the great civilizations and all great world religions, including Abrahamic Faiths (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam), emerged in Asia. As historical evidence, all of these great religions grew and developed through the religious literature delivered in the great ASIAN languages, including Arabic, Chinese, Persian, Urdu/Indian, and Malay. So, it is impossible to discuss religion and religious literature without referring to those great ASIAN languages. Of course, this is also true in the case of Islamic Studies.
